

Online Survey Results

- There were 103 valid responses
- Australian based staff (onshore) form the majority (71%) of total survey respondents
- Majority of respondents (65%) are lecturers. Program directors comprise 21% of respondents.
- Majority of respondents (72%) were from the discipline of business. Other discipline areas represented are humanities (11%), engineering (7%) and health sciences (2%)
- Majority of respondents (69%) work with a partner TNE team
- Approximately half of all Australian staff had a PhD, while 16% of TNE partner staff had a doctorate.
- Approximately half of all TNE partner staff and one fifth (22%) of Australian staff had less than five years of TNE experience.

Half of all respondents have variable frequency of communication with their TNE counterparts with most (81%) communication by email.

● ● ●
Strong positive correlation was found between satisfaction with communication and satisfaction with TNE moderation

● ● ●
Overall 58% of respondents believe communication is satisfactory. A higher proportion of TNE partner staff (68%) considered communication as satisfactory as compared to Australian staff (53%).

● ● ●
Most respondents were satisfied with communication and moderation, with a higher proportion of TNE partner staff satisfied than Australian staff

● ● ●
Overall 53% of respondents believe moderation is satisfactory. A higher proportion of TNE partner staff (64.5%) considered moderation as satisfactory as compared to Australian staff (47.2%).