

Types of pronouns

Demonstrative pronouns

This, that, these and those are known as demonstrative pronouns.

This (singular) and these (plural) are used as pronouns:

- To talk about people or things near us:
 - This is a good book
 - Whose reports are these?
- To introduce people:
 - This is Dr. Tarnowskyj
 - These are my children Dianne and Rick
- To introduce ourselves on the phone:
 - Hello, this is Jayne. Can I speak to a doctor?

That (singular) and those (plural) are used as pronouns:

- To talk about things that are not near us:
 - What is that?
 - That is your fault
 - Those are very expensive
- We also use that to refer back to something someone said or did:
 - Should we form a group? / Yes, that sounds good
 - I have got a new tutor / That is great
 - I am very sad / Why is that?

This, these, that and those are also used with nouns to show proximity:

- Use this or these for people/things near us:
 - We're enjoying this course
 - Have you enrolled for these courses?
- Use that and those for people/things that are not near us:
 - Who works in that role?
 - Who are those students?

Possessive pronouns

Yours, mine, theirs, ours, hers, his and its are known as possessive pronouns.

Subject	Object	Possessive adjectives	Possessive pronouns
I	Me	My	Mine
You	You	Your	Yours
He	Him	His	His
She	Her	Her	Hers
It	It	Its	Its
We	Us	Our	Ours
They	Them	Their	Theirs

We can use a possessive pronoun instead of a noun phrase:

- Is that Susan's textbook? / No, it is mine [my textbook]
- Whose notes are these? / They are yours [your notes]

Reflexive pronouns

The following are reflexive pronouns:

Singular	Plural
Myself	Ourselves
Yourself	Yourselves
Himself	Themselves
Herself
Itself

Reflexive pronouns are used:

- As a direct object when the object is the same as the subject of the verb:
 - I am teaching myself to touch type
 - You should reward yourself when you get a good grade
- As a direct object with most transitive verbs. The following are examples:

Amuse	Blame	Cut
Dry	Hurt	Introduce
Kill	Prepare	Enjoy
Satisfy	Help	Teach

- Allow me to introduce myself
 - They taught themselves to play piano
- As an indirect object when the indirect object is the same as the subject of the verb:
 - Would you like to help yourself?

- We taught ourselves how to use the library databases
- As the object of a preposition when the object refers to the subject of the clause:
 - The students took the pizza for themselves
 - She cooked the meal herself
- With the preposition by when we want to show that someone did something and/or without any help:
 - She worked it out by herself
 - They decorated the room by themselves
- To emphasise a person or thing we are referring to:
 - The Vice-Chancellor herself gave the keynote speech
- For emphasis, in which case the reflexive pronoun often goes at the end of the clause:
 - I wrote it myself
 - She taught it herself

Indefinite pronouns

The Indefinite Pronouns are:

-body	-one	-thing
Anybody	Anyone	Anything
Somebody	Someone	Something
Nobody	No one	Nothing
Everybody	Everyone	Everything

Indefinite Pronouns are used to refer to people or things without exactly saying who or what they are.

Pronouns ending in body or one are used for people and pronouns ending in thing for everyday objects:

- Everybody enjoyed the concert
- I went to answer the door but no one was there
- We could see everything from the back of the theatre

We use a singular verb after an indefinite pronoun:

- Everybody enjoys his jokes
- Everything was perfect

When we refer back to an indefinite pronoun, we normally use a plural noun:

- Everybody enjoyed the performance and they applauded for five minutes when it finished

We add an apostrophe + s ('s) to an indefinite pronoun to make it possessive:

- I found somebody's notes under the chair
- Is this anybody's concern?

We use else after indefinite pronouns to refer to people or things in addition to those already mentioned:

- My closest friends came but no one else

- If he cannot come, we will ask someone else
- Did she comment on anything else?

Interrogative pronouns

Interrogative Pronouns such as who, which and what introduce questions:

- What is the tutor's name?
- Who can help with my assignment?
- Which courses did you enrol in?

Note: which is generally used with more specific reference than what:

- Which questions were difficult to answer? (referring to specific questions)

Interrogative pronouns also act as determiners:

- It doesn't matter which question you answer as long as you choose just one
- I don't know whose tutorial to attend

Like relative pronouns, the interrogative pronouns introduce noun clauses and play a subject role in the clauses they introduce:

- We don't know who will be allocated to that hospital for their placement
- I already told the counsellor what I know about the incident
